1:58:28 PM	5/Cherry bottles thrown at officers
Unknown (placed at first reference to 5/Cherry; more likely this occurred closer to 4:00 pm)	Alexandra Chen "was marching in front of police department headquarters on 5th Avenue and Cherry Street. I saw some kind of glass bottle, 4 or 5 plastic water bottles, and one traffic flare thrown by a handful of agitators. The rest of the crowd was peaceful and calm. At this point in time, I was about 30-40 feet back from the barrier and was in the middle of the crowd. I did not hear any dispersal order or warning. and I did not see any nonverbal indication by the police that would show to me that the police were about to act. Without a dispersal order and without a warning, the police first deployed flash bangs. People panicked and started scattering. I also started to run and slipped a couple of times on the wet ground. About 20-30 seconds later, the gas hit. At first, I thought it was just smoke from the flash bangs, but the burning sensation in my eyes and on my skin told me otherwise."

30-May-20
Unknown (placed contemporaneous with other allegations that CS gas was deployed at Westlake)	Abie Ekenzar was at Westlake. "SPD deployed a chemical agent that I believe to be tear gas." "When the SPD deployed tear gas on May 30, the gas dispersed throughout the crowd, spreading well beyond the immediate vicinity where it was deployed." "SPD also deployed flash bang grenades. I also saw an SPD officer mace a little girl. The girl posed no risk to the officer."

3:55:53 PM	Patrol car on fire by Old Navy
3:59:19 PM	Crowd is on I-5
4:00:00 PM	Nathalie Graham arrives at Westlake. The scene when I arrived was clouded by gas, with protesters scattering and sprinting away. The atmosphere was tense and frightening. I immediately felt the effects of the gas and began coughing. My eyes stung and watered. Although there did not appear to be any risk of violence from the crowd, law enforcement continued to fire flash bangs and tear gas, increasing the chaos. I took video footage of these protests and the violence that ensued.
Unknown (occurred after "wandering around Westlake")	Nathalie Graham approached the corner of 6th and Stewart, I saw a group of protesters peacefully kneeling in the intersection as a speaker addressed them. I stood on the sidewalk nearby and listened to the speaker for a while, but then I heard an explosion from down the street. I turned and moved partway down the block to see what was happening, and then watched as a police line advanced down the street towards me, with other demonstrators fleeing in front of them. They deployed tear gas, which filled the street like plumes of smoke. It was not clear to me that the people fleeing the approaching police line and tear gas had done anything to provoke such an aggressive response. The protesters kneeling in the intersection, who were also impacted by the tear gas, had been completely peaceful. I did not see what happened next, but given the amount of gas in the air, I imagine that the kneeling protesters would have been forced to scatter.

Unknown (placed at reasonable time to walk to E. Pine)	Nathalie Graham, at East Pine St (specific location unknown), "saw a truck playing music, as protesters danced around it. It was an uplifting, joyful scene that contrasted with the warlike chaos of the panicked demonstrators and tear gas in other areas of the neighborhood. I paused to observe and record a video [not supplied], when law enforcement threw a flash bang grenade into the crowd without warning. They deployed tear gas seconds later. The dancing protesters at first scattered, but then coalesced back into a group. Law enforcement pushed them back and continued to deploy tear gas and flash bangs."

I did not hear the officers issue any warnings, and they did not have any masks. But seemingly without any provocation, the police officers began pepper spraying me and other protesters at the barricade. I was not being violent, nor was anyone else around me being violent. There was pepper spray on the whole right side of my body, my eye, my ear, my hair, and my mask. It took almost a minute for the pain to take effect. After a minute, I could no longer see clearly. But I knew the police threw flash bangs grenades—because I could hear their loud bangs and see the bright flashes of light." Alexandra Chen, "On Monday, June 1, 2020, I participated in the protests in Capitol Hill, approximately in the area near 11th Avenue and Pine Street. I stayed away from the front lines, largely because I was afraid of being gassed again. I didn't have a clear view of what happened in front, but I remember this as "the day of the pink umbrella." The police used flash bangs and tear gas. Though the gas had a similar effect to what I experienced on May 30, I think it was less severe because I was further away."

11:30:00 PM	Nathalie Graham, I was working at The Stranger's office at around 11:30 p.m. The office is on the third floor of a building that has a clear view of the intersection at 11th and Pine in Capitol Hill, which has become a daily protest site. That night, I was recording the demonstration from the fire escape. The vast majority of protesters below had been peaceful, although a few individuals had thrown water bottles, rocks, and at one point a traffic cone. Overall, the demonstration did not appear to be dangerous or out-of-control. The police made an announcement that I could not hear over a loudspeaker, and almost immediately afterwards removed their barricade so that officers on bikes could come streaming through into the crowd of protesters. They also started firing tear gas.

Unknown (placed at first mention of Cal Anderson; likely this occurs several hours later)	Andrew Woldeab: When we arrived back at Cal Anderson Park, there were less people at the precinct, and we were tired so we decided to go home before realizing we were missing our apartment key. We were looking for our key, on 13th Avenue and E Olive St when we heard loud bangs. We ran to the intersection of Pine and 13th to see what was happening and there saw and heard at least ten more flash bangs and saw a cloud of yellow teargas floating into the air by the barricade and quickly left so as not to inhale any of the toxic smoke. As we left we heard more flash bangs going off behind us.

Unknown (placed at known UOF)	Abie Ekenezar, "On Saturday, June 6, I participated in a protest in Capitol Hill, at the corner of 11th Avenue and E Pine St. Police kept repeating that they wanted protesters to move back, but the crowd did not move. Despite the SPD violence against protesters I had witnessed the prior weekend, I was shocked by the severity of the law enforcement response. I saw officers begin lobbing canisters of some kind of chemical irritant. The girl standing in front of me started choking on whatever chemical had been deployed, and she began screaming and crying."

Unknown	Alexandra Chen, "On Saturday, June 6, 2020, I was not present when I learned that law enforcement had deployed chemical agents, tear gas or pepper spray, in Capital Hill, the area near 11th and Pine. But when I heard that it had been used, I rushed to join the group. I was shocked and infuriated because I thought the police had violated the mayor's 30-day ban. I wanted to show up to support the other protesters and to show that I would not be intimidated by the use of force by the police."
